set off to attack Arthur personally and made a great fracas. People say this business will prevent the Abba's promotion to the mitre.

M. de la Monnoie, the other night, was in the parterre. Being extremely fat and bulky, he intercepted the view of the performance from two men behind him, one in particular, who began expressing his displeasure—" Enfin," said he out loud, " quand on est d'une pareille grosseur, on ne devrait pas se mettre devant les gens," " Excuses, Monsieur," said La Monnoie, turning round politely, "il n'est pas donne* d tout le monde d'etre plat comme vous."

June 2nd. At a grande fUe given by the Baron de Breteuil, on account of his granddaughter's marriage with the Baron de Montmorency, 3rd. Grand fetes> on the same occasion, at the Prince de Montmorency's on the Boulevards. We saw the fireworks and illuminations from the Princess Lubomirska's, opposite. Breteuil resigns to-day.

4tfA, Dined at Madame d'Angeviller's with M. de Bifvre, famous for his wit and calembours. The reputation he has acquired for them is such, that, a few days ago, he sat next to a person at dinner and asked him to have the kindness to help him to some spinach. The other began con-
